USER AIDA ENGAGEMENTS TOUCH-POINTS

Whenever visitors click any of your links or make any conversion such as (a sale, lead, app install, or software download etc) you are immediately able to establish and distinguish each conversion from various multi-touch data points such as;

- Location (country tier, country, region, city, zip code, time zone)
- Language
- ISP
- IP address
- Device type, device brand, device name, browser, OS
- Which site he is coming from (Referral URL)
- Conversion Timestamp
- As well as any custom variable you may have added to your link

Audience Target identification feature

AIDA means Attention, Interest, Desire, and Action. In a nutshell, it's a way to measure your visitors' level of interest from attention to action (conversion). AIDA helps you to identify the good and bad ads placement as early as possible making the optimization phase much faster, and far less expensive which in turn increases your ROI by 30%.

On the off chance that the idea of cost-per-action is unfamiliar to you, here's the manner by which CPA affiliate marketing works.

CPA Affiliate Marketing is a Risk - Free Alternative to a Traditional Media Buy

With a customary media advert, you pay up-front to ensure ad placement. Yet, regardless of how adequately you focus, some portion of that buy is wasted. You could pay on a cost per click (CPC) basis, however, there's no assurance that the clicks you pay for will convert into clients.

CPA is Performance-Based – You Pay just For Results

With CPA affiliate marketing, you make your campaign available for placement through a network of digital publishers across online and mobile channels. As opposed to paying them up-front to run your advertisements, you pay them an abundance—or "payout for the actual conversions they deliver. That conversion can be a sale, completed lead form, subscription, sign up, download, video view or any other measurable consumer action that you wish to generate and it makes business sense to pay to obtain.

The 2 key points of interest of the CPA Marketing model are:

- Zero advertisement waste – you pay just for results.
- More broad media placement – the autonomous online publishers who run CPA campaigns are masters in driving conversions to a given group of campaigns by means of at least one or more online channels.

In fact, most are so expert that you could not afford to hire them for your marketing team (they make more as independent publishers). Be that as it may, you can give them something to do for you by means of the CPA affiliate marketing model and reach more consumers through a bigger number of channels than you could reach individually.
